WILL IT BE WILLIAM THE GREAT?

During the peaceful years of his reign Emperor Wilhelm II, the half-English ruler of Germany, has so far eclipsed the record of all other crowned heads as a promoter of the welfare of his country that had he died last month, before the precipitation of war upon Europe, he might have been called "William the Great." Apparently he would not have died contented with his career. Events soon to transpire will determine whether the "vaulting ambition" of the Kaiser made or ruined him. He will issue from this immeasurable war of his own creation either a mighty conqueror or a gigantic failure. Austria would hardly have acted against Serbia without Germany's consent. When Germany allowed the match to be dropped in the powder keg it was with full knowledge that the explosion would envelope the Continent of Europe in smoke.—Courier-Journal.

SHERMAN'S WISE WORDS.

In the last month General Sherman, we venture to say, has forged to the front in the most widely-quoted contest. This is what he really said:

"I am tired and sick of war. Its glory is all moonshine. It is only those who have neither fired a shot nor heard the shrieks and groans of the wounded who cry aloud for more blood, more vengeance, more desolation. War is hell."

After far less experience of it than Sherman had when he spoke those true and wise words, the war lords of Europe, in their hearts at least, will subscribe to them. Victors and vanquished alike will realize within a year that war is hell and its glory all moonshine. The men who fire the shots and hear the shrieks and groans of the wounded know these things already.—Ashland Independent.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADMONITION.

What "even you and I" say in the street may be a breach of neutrality. The President's admonition to the people of America not to take sides is timely and thoughtful. We cannot afford to take sides. The spirit of neutrality will be destroyed if any considerable number of Americans take snap judgment and array themselves upon one side or the other.

Let Europe fight it out, dragging in Asia, if it will. But let America and Americans keep out of the fracas.—Ashland Independent.

T. R. SHOULD CAN HIS EGO.

The nation has been patient with the Colonel's strident antics, and in some quarters his professions have been received as sincere. But his present refusal to merge at least temporarily his ego with the welfare of the country is too much. Certainly in political neurology there never has been a similar case in which the odor of a third cup of coffee so disastrously affected the human mind.—Times-Star.

"THE OLD FOLKS AT HOME"

Among all the new terrors of war that have been invented by the moderns there is none that will exceed in anguish that ancient one experienced by the old folks at home waiting for news from the front.—Charleston (W. Va.) Mail.

Martin Sheets of Terra Haute, has ordered a telephone in his new $8,000 mausoleum in Highland Cemetery. He will pay rent far enough in advance always to cover a few months beyond his death.

EVANGELIZING MEXICO—BETTER WAIT.

In a religious conference held in Cincinnati last week it was decided to invade Mexico, and to start a missionary campaign along with the new peace and the new Constitutional regime. Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, Disciples and others voted with fine enthusiasm to begin at once preparations for the invasion, and once on the ground to wage a vigorous warfare upon sin, poverty, disease, ignorance and all the ills which have so long and so heavily beset the Mexican populace. This is admirable, in theory, and would be most admirable in practice, were the times propitious. But it is entirely too early to count upon peace in Mexico. Only to the most credulous does it appear that peace has been restored. The signs in Mexico point strongly to an early resumption of hostilities. The probabilities favor another year of bloodshed and destruction more terrible than any that Mexico has yet experienced. The revolution has developed no man big enough, broad enough and patriotic enough, and high enough in the regard of the majority to control the situation. In the absence of such a man, and with a score of local leaders still itching to prolong the fray for the sake of plunder or revenge, there is little hope that peace is at all near. Carranza may be a patriot and he may have statesman qualities. But it is due almost solely to the genius and fighting qualities of Villa that he is in Mexico City today, and Villa, with his army, may reopen hostilities at any moment. The purpose of these missionaries is laudable, but only the poorest judgment would direct them into that distracted land in the present state of uncertainty.—Huntington Herald-Dispatch.

EUROPE'S COMING TRANSFORMATION.

When Liege failed to capitulate the Germans said that the battle there was only a minor feature of the advance, which would certainly and steadily proceed. The Allies say that the fall of Namur is merely an unfortunate occurrence, such as may be looked for during this or any other war, and that it is regrettable rather than discouraging.

From this distance it seems highly probable that the Germans will soon be in Paris, but the war will not be decided by the fate of France in its early stages. Nothing that could have happened this early in the war would more surely have stirred the fighting blood of the Allies and added so much to the fierceness of the titanic struggle of which it is an opening event.—Courier-Journal.

Anyway, if President Wilson does not leave the White House with a larger fortune he will go out with a smaller expense account.

THE DAILY NOVELETTE.

The Practical Joker.

He really loved her,
Yet he planned
A joke upon her,
Then was caught.

"What shall I get you for your birthday, Miss Cruiser?" he asked. "Something fancy or something useful—something that will last!"

She never hesitated a second, for, above all, she was sensible.

"Something that will last, assuredly," she said.

II.

On the evening of her birthday, while he hid a smile with one hand he presented her in the other a small oblong package. She opened it flutteringly.

It was a package of Serpentine's chewing gum!

"Oh!" she exclaimed, and cast the package on the floor where it broke into a thousand pieces (it must have been slightly stale). "Oh!"

"You said you wanted something that would last!" he hastened to say. "I don't know anything that lasts longer without losing its flavor than—"

"Don't speak to me!" she hissed. "You are unspeakable! Your hat is on the rack!"

In spite of the poor chap's pitiful efforts to explain, he found himself out on the front step in bewilderment and a perspiration. And, as he never had the nerve to call again, the girl never knew that he took the real present, a diamond solitaire ring, away with him in his back pocket.

Moral: Never play a practical joke without first writing a letter of explanation.—Louisville Times.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one remedial disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, taken internally, acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. ## PUBLIC CONFIDENCE

As Seen by the General

Public confidence is the greatest asset that any house of business can possess. It is more to be desired than the ability to make money. There are degrees of public confidence. It may be zero, a minus quantity, or a plus quantity. At zero no confidence exists—nobody is for or against such a house. But this condition can exist only where the house or its goods are unknown, and as soon as the public has given the house a trial it will pass judgment, and public confidence will then be expressed by a plus or minus sign, according to the approval or disapproval of the public as to the goods and policies of the house. If the goods are not represented, or if the policies are not in accordance with the ethics of good business, public confidence will drop to a minus quantity and the people will transact business with its competitors whose business ideals are on a higher and more satisfactory plane. If the goods are satisfactory, and if the policies of the house are right, the people will continue to do business with that house and will help to build it up. The plus sign of public confidence is always attached to a house of business that considers service to its customers, absolute integrity with reference to its goods, and high ideals in its business policies, as being of greater consequence than the mere earning of dividends. A well satisfied community of customers is the key to the success of any house of business, and, having established this, dividends will be sure to follow.

ILLITERACY

To Be Eliminated From Every County In Kentucky Says Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart.

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 24.—Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, president of the Kentucky Illiteracy commission, has sent out the following call for volunteers: "While European countries are calling for volunteers in a conflict of war, Kentucky is calling for volunteers in a conflict of peace, a conflict which, if eventually and successfully waged will insure to the people of this great Commonwealth a new era of peace, happiness and prosperity. Kentucky has one blight and blot upon her record at this time, and that is the high percentage of illiteracy among her adult population. Reports show 208,684 of her men and women can not read or write, and are thus deprived of the privilege of citizenship and prevented from enjoying the richest blessings of life. These men and women are mostly native whites. Many of them are people of superior intellect and some of them, at least, are ambitious.

"For the sake of this great army of benighted men and women, for the sake of their children and their grandchildren, for the sake of the cause of Education, for the sake of a better and more intelligent citizenship, for the sake of a more creditable record when the census of 1920 is taken, for the sake of the Commonwealth, which when crime breaks out or epidemics prevail or dark days come, looks upon its illiteracy as the cause and lament. 'My people are confounded for want of knowledge.' We appeal to every public and private school teacher to enlist a moonlight school on the evening of September 7, and to every citizen to seek out and instruct some one or more illiterates. 'One thousand moonlight schools, 50,000 adults enrolled, 10,000 illiterates taught,' is our aim for 1914. Let all true and patriotic Kentuckians, men, women and children, rich and poor, young and old, white and colored, enlist for service in Kentucky's conflict against illiteracy."

NINETY MILLIONS

Paid Uncle Sam as Internal Revenue in Ohio Valley States.

Washington, August 23.—Internal Revenue Collectors in the four Ohio Districts collected $25,031,262 during the year ending June 30, 1914, according to the annual report of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue made public today. More than three-fifths of this sum was collected in the Cincinnati district.

These collections include $525,023 under the corporation excise tax, $1,856,607 under the corporation income tax and under the individual tax $904,508. The total collections in each of the four Ohio districts were: First, $16,298,056; Tenth, $3,048,281; Eleventh, $1,397,795; Eighth, $4,287,129.

For the same fiscal year the total collections in Kentucky were $35,405,517; Indiana, $29,598,797; West Virginia, $2,084,690.

In point of collections the Cincinnati district ranks fourth in the 65 collection districts in the United States. Greater collections were made only in the Fifth Illinois, Fifth Kentucky and Second New York Districts.

WHAT GERMANS MAY SUFFER

British View of Terms of Peace in Case Allies Win.

(London Cor. Baltimore American.)—Supposing a great battle is fought all along the line of the French and German frontier, in which the allies are uniformly successful; that is to say the German army is worsted to such an extent that it cannot again take the offensive. Supposing after such a battle that Kaiser Wilhelm and his advisers, seeing that the game of aggression has shot its bolt, endeavor to come to immediate terms. What are the conditions of peace for which we must ask?

France must have the line of the Rhine as her new frontier. She will take nothing else as the return for sacrifices of the past 40 years. Belgium must have rectified the violation of her frontier and also compensation for the immense damage inflicted on her population. England, if we can not destroy it by fighting, must insist upon the surrender of the German fleet for, without the destruction or surrender of it, any peace would be a hollow sham.

Probably both England and France would insist upon war indemnity, and at the other end of Europe, Russia will also demand territory and guarantee for the future. These must be the minimum terms for the allies. They may seem severe, but they are essential to the maintenance of peace in the future.

Now, does any one for a moment suppose Kaiser Wilhelm will accept conditions just because the German of fence has broken down? It would mean the loss of his remaining prestige and probably of his throne as well. What will happen then? We shall be called upon to assume the offensive against Germany, which will immeasurably add to the difficulties of the military situation.

In such a case Lord Kitchener's plan to raise 500,000 men is of vital importance. France has already mobilized to almost her last man, and the brunt of the fighting is about to fall on the French army. Their losses will be enormous, but they must be replaced and they can only be obtained by building up behind the French army a British and Belgium force powerful enough in numbers and sufficiently well trained to strike a decisive blow. It may be six months or a year from now it may be even sooner, when the German defenses are weakening under the continuous strain of the French offensive, and when the latter are exhausted to reap the full harvest of the sacrifices they have made.

INTERESTING KENTUCKY NEWS

(Falmouth Outlook.)

Falmouth, Williamstown and Brooks ville are the only three towns left in the State that are bothered to any great extent with horse swappers on court days. Last court day it resembled the Russian cavalry mobilizing on the public highway across the river. Sheriff Cummins scattered the mob twice, but the next time he expects to use some stronger ammunition. Every jockey who has a plug or two is now hustling to get the other fellow to winter it and a man could take a pocketful of barlow knives just now and get enough plugs to mount a regiment of soldiers.

(Owenton Democrat.)

Every farmer who has fields of hill land plowed that are likely to yield should sow crimson clover or rye to hold the land. Either of these crops will do the work and also furnish fine winter and spring grazing. The man who sows rye or wheat and hogs down the crop, turning the stubble and sowing cowpeas need not sow grass seed.

(Lancaster Record.)

Undoubtedly Garrard county's banner peach crop is being harvested this year, both in point of quality and quantity. Many wagonloads of the luscious fruit are to be seen on our streets every day, both home grown and brought in from the adjoining counties and they may be had at prices ranging from 75 cents to $1.50 per bushel.

(Williamstown News.)

Five people have been shot to death in Williamstown during the past ten months. All but one of them were victims of the pistol-toting habit. Start at the root of the evil by suppressing the pistol-toting and you will go a long way towards stopping the frequent murders not only in this county but all over the State.

(Wickliffe Yeoman.)

Church Pace, the butcher, ran out of meat this week and went out to cut wood. He let the axe slip and is now carrying his hand in a sling. Mr. Pace says that hereafter he will attend strictly to his meat business and leave the wood for some one else to cut.

(Glasgow Gazette.)

If Barren county only had good roads she would be right in front. Statistics show that she is one of the best producing counties in the State. She has no specialty, but produces all the staple crops and the finest stock in the world.

(Greensburg Record.)

A stalk of tobacco about six feet long after being topped was brought to town by J. Morrison last Monday as a sample of his two-acre crop. He has some mighty good tobacco.

MAKE AN ICE HOUSE TO STORE YOUR SNOW

Sections Where Little Ice Forms During the Winter May Save the Snow to Use in Place of Ice the Following Summer.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—Farmers in sections where little ice is formed but where there is plenty of snow may store the snow in ice houses and use it in the place of ice the following summer, according to field agents of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This plan which has given excellent results in practice, is now being recommended to farmers especially in Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky and Maryland. Summer is the time in which the house should be made for storing the next winter's snowfalls.

The snow houses that have been in successful use in Virginia and Maryland, consist of a pit which is sheltered by a gable roof four feet from the ground. The dirt dug from the pit is piled around the board sides of the house and graded off to drain the water from the house. The pit underground is not less than 16 feet in diameter and depth. The bottom is from two to six feet smaller than the top to prevent all space around the snow as it settles. The pit is lined with planks two inches thick. The house is well covered to keep out heat. Trees shading the roof help to keep the house cool.

How To Store the Snow.

Snow should be put in before it is wet. Probably the best time is as soon as it has settled sufficiently to pack well. It can be collected from any level place that is clean, such as a hay field. If the snow is deep it may be doved directly into a wagon. If thin it can be drawn into rows by means of a plank drag similar to the "King Road Drag," then hauled by wagons to the snow pit. It must be well packed by tramping with the feet and tamping with a block of wood. "SNOW WELL PACKED will last as long as ice," say those who have tried the experiment successfully. They also advise that after the snow has settled a few days the spaces between the snow and walls should be filled with more snow and filled as high as possible.

When the outside temperature is low 32 degrees, the doors of the ice house should be kept open. When the temperature rises above freezing, they should be closed. The top of the snow should be covered with sacks first, then with 2 or 3 feet of sawdust or straw. As fast as the snow melts around the sides, the space should be packed with straw to prevent air current.

When snow is wanted, remove the covering and shovel out the quantity desired, always remembering to recover the exposed place. This snow can be used for cooling milk, dairy product or meat, for freezing ice cream and many other purposes.

BIG EVENT

Will Be the Forty-Ninth State Convention Kentucky's Sunday School Association at Lexington, October 20-23.

The Forty-ninth State Convention of the Kentucky Sunday School Association will meet in Lexington, October 20-23. A splendid program is being arranged, there will be some of the best speakers in the Sunday School work music by a great choir, conferences on all departments of Sunday School activities.

There are about four thousand Sunday Schools in Kentucky and every one of these is entitled to send delegates. No money can be better spent than by coming to such a gathering and meeting the people who are doing the best things for the uplift of Kentucky. Lexington is near the center of the State and is easily reached and, out side of the convention, has many attractions for visitors.

Any one who is interested in making a greater and a better Kentucky can become a delegate.

WARNING AGAINST FIRE

Issued By Insurance Companies Because of War Conditions.

Chicago, Ill.—Fire insurance men are endeavoring to impress upon the public the importance of special care in the matter of fire prevention at this particular time.

Normal losses have been heavy, and if a serious conflagration should come the existing financial and banking conditions would produce an unusual result. It would be necessary for the companies to sell large amounts of securities to pay a loss of great magnitude, and with the Stock Exchanges closed this would be impossible, no matter what great sacrifices they might be willing to make as to price in order to meet their obligations promptly. A conflagration just at this time, with its destruction of values and its disturbance of financial conditions, would be serious.

The real test of quality in a drink lies in its smoothness.

You will be struck with this characteristic of Parfay as you take the first sip. You will find a richness, a mellow smoothness that is Parfay's own.

KENTUCKY'S APPLE CROP

7,100,000 BARRELS.

Washington, August 24.—An apple crop of 210,000,000 bushels is forecast today by the Department of Agriculture, which bases its estimate upon its latest reports. That is about 65,000,000 bushels more than last year, but 25,000,000 bushels less than in 1912, and about 4,000,000 bushels less than in 1911. The mean price to producers in the three months of heavy marketing, September, October and November, last year, was $5.5 cents a bushel. Forecast of production by States gives Virginia 12,300,000 bushels, Ohio 10,500,000 bushels, West Virginia 10,300,000, Indiana 4,000,000, Kentucky 7,100,000, Tennessee 5,900,000.
